

Did You Know?

Einstein once said, "Imagination is more important than knowledge."

Imagination opens the door to so many possibilities. It brings cognitive and social development together, allowing children to utilize creative thinking and further collaboration. Imagination enables someone to envision an image or an idea, then bring it to life.

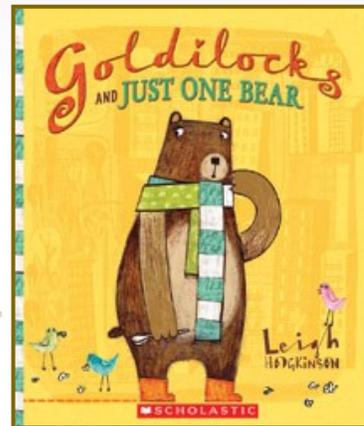

The Mayor's Book Club pick for November, Goldilocks and Just One Bear, truly awakens the imagination. It is a Goldilocks and the Three Bears adaptation, and the reimaged version is perfect for family story time.

It's Fun and Easy!

Goldilocks and Just One Bear by Leigh Hodgkinson features Baby Bear all grown up. He wanders through the forest and finds himself in the big city. Find out if he likes the city and how Goldilocks will make an appearance.

Tip #1 – The story features large, bold words throughout Baby Bear's dialogue. These words are excellent ways to learn new vocabulary words or reinforce any words the child or children may already know. Typically in the story, these words are adjectives or descriptive words that let the reader understand how Baby Bear perceives an item.

Tip #2 – The illustrations throughout the story are detailed, and on many pages, quite comical. The illustrations provide parents/guardians and children with the opportunity to look at the artwork on the pages and discuss. These images could spark imaginations to run wild with brilliant ideas and great topics to share.

Bringing the Story to Life!

Take a Fall Nature Walk

In the story, the bear decides to return home to the woods after visiting Goldilocks in the city. Help your child develop his/her narrative skills by going for a fall nature walk at a public park or around your neighborhood. On your nature walk help your child gather fallen leaves that he/she thinks are interesting. Ask your child to: Describe the leaves. Pick his or her favorite leaf. Come up with a story describing how the leaves fell to the ground. Ask questions to get him/her started (EX. Did a squirrel knock the leaf to the ground? Did the wind blow it in from a far off place?).

During your nature walk sing the Fall Song with your child.

Tune: Are You Sleeping?

Watch the leaves fall, watch the leaves fall
On the ground, on the ground.

Oh, so many colors! Oh, so many colors!
Red, yellow, brown. Red, yellow, brown.

Make Hibernating Bear Cupcakes

Fall is the time of year for bears to prepare for hibernation. Make hibernating bear cupcakes to enjoy on a cool autumn day. Follow the mixing directions on your favorite cake mix. Fill the cupcake tin half way, then place a teddy graham cookie in the middle of the batter. Cover the teddy graham cookies with the remaining batter and bake. Allow the cupcakes to cool and frost with vanilla icing. The cookies will hold their shape during baking, and your child will enjoy finding the bear in the snow-covered "cupcave!"
